Indian History Along the Penobscot

The story of the Indians in the state of Maine is ever interesting, Especially is that of the region of the Penobscot valley. This race of men is the subject of pity as well as of hatred, hated for their cruelty, and pitied for their misfortune at the hands of their more civilized fellows, the Anglo Saxons.

We of a later day can look upon this race in a spirit of greater fairness than could our ancestors whose view of the red man was obscured by his late acts of rapine and plunder. As we read history let us remember that they were struggling to retain their own domain, to defend their "Fatherland" against the acts of the aggressive pale face whose deeds of power we delight to honor.

TRIBES OF THE PENOBSCOT.

In our brief sketch we cannot attempt to trace in full the descent of the Indian tribes of this region. It is unnecessary. We will begin by stating that the Indians of the state of Maine generally were divided into the following tribes: The Sokokis, of the Saco river region; the Anasagunticooks or Abenakis, of the Androscoggin and lower Kennebec region; the Canibas of the Norridgewock region; and the Warenocks, of the eastern part of Maine as now known. Of these the latter are to us most interesting. Another almost synonymous name for this tribe is the Etchemin tribe. This tribe however included the Indians to the extreme headwaters of the Penobscot and the St. John river. This tribe is usually divided into three divisions, viz: those on the St. John; those of the Passamaquoddy; and the Tarratines of the Penobscot, of whom we are most concerned. It is undoubtedly true that this tribe is the ancestor of the present remnant, known as the Penobscot tribe. This tribe claimed dominion over the entire Penobscot valley from the headwaters to the sea.

Concerning these Indians we here quote Mr. Williamson, as follows: "They were a numerous, powerful and warlike people, more hardy and brave than their western enemies, whom they often plundered and killed, and according to Hubbard and Price, kept the Sycamores between the Piscataqua and the Mystic in perpetual fear. After the conquests and glory achieved in their battles with the Babshaba and his allies they were not, like their enemies, wasted by disease and famine. They retained their valor animated by success and strengthened by the early use and supply of firearms, with which they were furnished by the French. The Tarratines ever manifested the greatest satisfaction in their intercourse with the French. No fortifications upon the peninsula of Major Biguyduce, or buildings in the vicinity, excited either fear or jealousy in them for no rising plantations of the French threatened them with the loss of their lands or privileges. A barter of their furs for guns, ammunition and trinkets was managed with a freedom and a directness which won and secured their attachments. Their companionable manners and volatile turn made the bonds strong and lasting. The Tarratines have probably at different periods shifted the situation of their principal village. At the mouth of the Kenduskeag they had a common resting place when the white people first settled in that vicinity—a place to which they were from habit strongly attached. Here the mouldering relics of human bodies also flint spears, stone implements of labor, and Indians paint dust have been accidentally disinterred after a burial of an unknown period of time. The Tarratines were neutral in the war of the Revolution. In return Massachusetts, of which this region was a part at that time, protected them and prohibited all trespass upon their lands six miles in width on each side of the Penobscot, from the head of tide upwards. The state from time to time bought large tracts of land from them till their territory was greatly diminished in size. These Indians when they were first seen by the whites dwelt on both sides of the river and in conjunction with the other tribes roamed the whole of the state of Maine to the westward of this region. That they wandered far from their Penobscot home is evident. One historian asserts that the chief Samo-set who met the English at Plymouth with the words "Welcome Englishmen" in their own tongue was a Tarratine, and came from the Island of Monhegan.

WARS OF THE TARRATINES.

The Indian seemed to be fated to be the opponent of the Englishman ; in religion, and personal make up the Englishman was at a very serious disadvantage as compared with the Frenchman with his vivacious ways, and his attractive and impressive religious services. It is probable that the most of the English had serious intentions and an honest purpose to deal justly with the red man. Their charters called for religious training, forbade the sale of liquors to them and in every way enjoined their training in the channels of civilization. But the Frenchman did all in his power to engender the spirit of animosity which was early started in the breast of the savage. Only one result could possibly be and that was war. But though the Indians were gradually drifting to hostilities they were hurled headlong into an open conflict by Weymouth's infamous seizure of five of their tribe in 1605. In 1631 or 1632 there was an outbreak between the Tarratines and their rivals, but the conflict was not long prolonged nor bloody. The great war with the Mohawks about 1663 greatly discomforted the Tarratines, their dreaded enemies following them even to the banks of the Penobscot, burning their dwellings, and doing great harm in accordance with Indian warfare. Soon small pox devastated the tribe till it was almost exterminated.

No further action in warfare was participated in by these Indians till the coming of Maj. Church in 1694, who laid waste their fields and killed several of the natives. In 1722 Lovewell's war opened and lasted three years. The war was thus named for Capt. Lovewell of Dunstable, the hero of the battle of Pequaket. The warfare was carried to the Penobscot Valley, and began at the arrival of Col. Thomas Westbrook in 1723. This expedition was made up of two hundred thirty. They scurried the coast of Mt. Desert in whaling boats and small vessels, and then proceeded up the Penobscot, anchoring at Marsh Island, it is stated, on March 4 of that year. Here they left their boats and began a five days march through the forests near the river. At the Old Indian Fort which they found deserted the company destroyed everything of value. It is stated that this fort was situated in Orono about six miles above Kenduskeag. After the destruction of the buildings about the Fort the whites returned. About two years later when the Tarratines had rebuilt the village, Capt. Joseph Heath with his company crossed the country and attacked the village, laying it in ashes. No Indians were found. The village was never rebuilt, Oldtown being the place finally settled upon as their future abode. In October 1723 a vessel landing at Mt. Desert, Capt. Cogswell commanding, was attacked by the Indians, the whole crew being captured. The wars being over the Indians returned to their usual customs, hunting and fishing. Gradually, by treaty and by other courses the English came into possession of the lands along the Penobscot. The Indians were greatly cheated in these deals, but managed to retain possession of certain tracts, and to this day have control of a large number of islands in the Penobscot. They also have a large sum in the hands of the state which is holden as a perpetual fund for their support on which the state pays interest annually. In all, the Indian tribe receives not far from $8,000 per year from different sources. The treatment of these Indians on the Penobscot by the State of Maine is in marked contrast with that of Massachusetts when this whole region was a part of that commonwealth. Everything of practical value to them is done for their protection and benefit.

General Description.

Milbridge, incorporated as a town July 14, 1848, is situated in the south-western part of Washington County, thirty miles west-south-west of Machias. By water route, the town is 207 miles from Portland, 127 miles from Rockland, 43 miles from Machiasport, and 197 miles from Bangor. Milbridge is bounded on the north by Cherryfield, on the south by the Narraguagus Bay, on the east by this same bay and Harrington, and on the west by Steuben and Cherryfield.

In size it is one of the smallest towns in the state. The township is long and narrow—a mere “slice” of a township as it were—and is cut into two parts by the Narraguagus River, which travels its entire length and finally, gains the Ocean.

Today this town needs no introduction to the public. It ranks high, in many phases of the word. Beautiful buildings adorn its streets. Many contrivances are present for the safety and pleasure of its citizens. The town bids well to become a most prosperous seaport.

Early Settlement.

FIRST SETTLERS, INDIANS—FIRST WHITE VISITORS—FIRST WHITE SETTLERS—GROWTH OF SETTLEMENT.

Prior to the arrival of the whites, this region in the Narragagus Valley was inhabited by the Redmen. A mention of this race always quickens the interest of the reader, if he be a student of the American History. Few and simple were their laws, yet more generally observed than the numerous enactment of civilized nations which fill many volumes of statute books.

The early settlers got along peaceably, at first, with the Redmen. Later, hostilities occurred; and for this the Whites were partly to blame, for the Indian was often deceived and cheated out of his rights by his better civilized neighbor. We know that this race was fighting, according to the methods of their people, for home and existence. We are aware that he was inflicting punishment upon his intruders, which he thought was justly due. With these facts, we cannot blame the Indian for his part in these so called Indian Wars; but must sympathize with them, the weaker race knowing that it was for the interest of civilization that they should succumb to the stronger.

This race in the Narraguagus Valley were a part of the Passamaquoddy Tribe. They were ever friendly towards the early pioneers of our town, for the Indian Wars had ceased long before its settlement; yet it seems that these people always stood in awe of them, and ever granted their petty requests.

In the remembrance of some of the town's aged citizens, small band of Indians were prying up and down the Narraguagus river. Fickett's Point was a frequent camping ground of theirs. Here, as well as many other places, relics such as stone-ovens, arrow heads and stone hatchets have been found. Indian Garden Brook, a small stream on the road to Wyman near the residence of Wm. H. and Raleigh Flagg, is a place where they were accustomed to meet and execute their so-called "war dances." Carrying Place, another traditional spot, situated in the extreme southern part of the town, is a narrow strip of land connecting the main and Petit-Manan Point. This peninsula received its name, from the fact that the Indians carried their canoes across it; when they passed from the Narraguagus Bay into Dyer's Bay, thus saving the long journey around the point.

Thus we have a vague description of this rough exterior race, which we but admire, when we think of their courage, endurance and manly spirit. May the Indian name of our river and valley ever remind us of these first inhabitants of our town.

The first white persons to set foot on Milbridge soil were, in all probability, early voyagers. Who these persons were, and the date of their arrival, we do not know. Captain Bartholomew Gosnold made a voyage along the coast of Maine in 1602, Martin Pring in 1603 and Captain John Smith in 1614. Pring, so history tells us, made an exact account of all these harbors and rivers along our coast. As he explored other small rivers, it is but natural that he should have sailed a short distance up the Narraguagus. A traditional story says that Captain John Smith landed on Dyer's Island, when in pursuit of an Indian, who had fled hither with his wife and child.

Again, fishermen may have landed on our shores, for, prior to 1700, this sturdy class of men were prying all along our coast in pursuit of their occupation. It was their custom to go abroad during the summer months, but to return to their settled homes when winter came on.

These facts, although they do not tell us who the first visitor was, yet they are sufficient to convince us that this region, now Milbridge, was visited by the whites at a very early date.

The date of the first permanent settlement in Milbridge, by the Whites, is uncertain. Settlements of short duration were made at Calais in 1604, Machias in 1644, and Eastport in 1772; but no permanent settlement was made in those towns prior to the following dates, Calais, 1763; Machias, 1764; and Eastport, 1780.

The name of the first settler in our town is not positively known, as different parts of the town were settled about the same time.

A settlement was made at Mill River at a very early date. The first settler there was John Dinsmore, who came from Dover, New Hampshire to this town in company with Ichabod Willey, the first settler in Cherryfield. The date of their arrival is claimed by their descendants to be 1756. The Dinsmores of this and other towns in our county are descendants of Mr. Dinsmore. The Strouts, Campbells; Rays, Putmans and Prebles were also early settlers along this river. The old Campbell homestead is now occupied by Mrs. Hannah Kennedy, and is said to be over 100 years old. Ira Strout's residence, near Mrs. Kennedy, is the old Strout place. This is probably one of the oldest, if not the oldest house now standing in town. Its age is placed at approximately 150 years.

The Strouts were the first to arrive at Back Bay. Joseph Strout, known as Deacon Strout settled there about 1762. Others of his near relatives soon followed. Numerous descendants of these early Strouts are now living in our town.

About this same time, a settlement was made on Pond Island, at the mouth of the Narraguagus Bay, by Daniel Stanwood. Mr. Stanwood erected a house on that Island, and lived there with his family. We do not know where he came from, or how long he remained.

The first person to establish a home on the banks of our river, Narraguagus, was Joseph Wallace, known as Major Wallace. Some give Mr. Wallace the distinction of being the first settler in town. There are many facts to sanction that assertion. Mr. Wallace came to this town from Beverly, Massachusetts, and settled on the east bank of the Narraguagus river, on the road to Fickett's Point, near the site of the home of H. H. Enfield, known as the Deacon Wallace homestead. Mr. Wallace was a man of energy and wealth who carried on ship-bullding at a very early date, and was, also, the owner of a large fleet of mercantile vessels.

Another early settler, here, about the same time as Mr. Wallace, was a person whose surname was "Whaugh" we do not know who he was, or where he came from. He settled on the west bank of the river a half-mile below Wallace's Creek. As late as 1835 his house was standing, and known as the "Whaugh" Place. It is said that, during the Revolutionary War, an English brig came up the river one evening, but seeing a light on each bank of the river, she retreated, thinking it was from two forts. The two lights were from the homes of Major Wallace and Mr. Whaugh.

About 1762 John Small came here from Cape Elizabeth, and settled on a lot on the west bank of the river, near the "Whaugh" homestead. Jonathan Small, a half brother of his, took out a lot near him.

The Browns whose descendants are now living in town, were early settlers. Two brothers, Jesse and David, came here from Falmouth, now Portland, and settled on the east side, near Fickett's Wharf.

Josiah Sawyer, an early settler, came to this town from Cape Elizabeth, and settled in the extreme southern part of the town, near Petit-Manan's Point. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Jesse Brown.

James and John Foster, two brothers, settled in town soon after the close of the Revolutionary War. Just before the Embargo Act, they began the building of a large brig. Their yard was situated up the river above the bridge. This vessel was never completed, for the above mentioned Act, and the war of 1812, made the project a failure. This craft, without spars, was embanked and covered over with brush, where it was left to decay.

Another early settler on the river was Samuel Leighton, who came in about 1760 from Falmouth, now Portland, to this town, and settled on the east bank of the river. His brother, Thomas took out a lot at the same time near Pigeon Hill, in the town of Steuben.

In most cases as soon as one member of a family settled here, others of the same stock followed. It was the same with the above: Wallaces, Smalls, Browns, Fosters, Leightons Sawyers. A mention of their names will be made later. The following are representative surnames of families who were among the early settlers, not here-to-fore mentioned: Jordan, Ray, Upton, Nickles, Smith, Turner, Shaw, Godfrey, Fickett, Leavitt, Cain, Corthell, and Dyer. Some, if not all of these, will be taken up later.

The plantation grew in numbers very slowly, at first. The thinly settled regions in the Narraguagus Valley were not found very attractive. At the close of the 1812 War, there, probably were not more than twelve families within a radius of three miles of our present village post-office.

In 1835, twenty-three years later, we have the following description of the site of our present village and its vicinity.

On the west bank of the river beginning at Wyman Cove and extending a mile above the center of the village, were the following early settlers and their homes: Solon Turner, William Ray, Thomas Strout, Daniel L. Corthell, "Cain's" log house, James Wallace. James Ray, "Jordan's" homestead, Jonathan Upton, "Whaugh's" place, William Godfrey, Joseph Ray, Asa Leighton, Eli Foster, Nathan Hinckley, Patrick Campbell, Benjamin Leavitt, Solomon Strout, Nathaniel Strout, twenty in all. Of these houses the following are still standing : Thomas Strout's, the residence of Leonard Rowe; Daniel L. Corthell's, now occupied by A. C. Leighton; James Wallaces', late residence of Mrs. James Wallace; James Ray's, now the home of Raymond Gay; William Godfrey's, now occupied by Charles Farnsworth; Patrick Campbell's, the residence of Fletcher Campbell; and Nathan Hinckley's, the home of Mrs. Hannah Hinckley.

The following lived on the east bank of the river : Major Joseph Wallace, Simeon Brown, James Brown, John Brown, Rufus Fickett, Albion Fickett, Thomas Leighton, Benjamin Wallace, James Otis, Samuel Rich, and Deacon Wallace. Deacon Wallaces' residence is the only one of these houses now standing, and is occupied by Henry H. Enfield.

From the present village to Wyman Cove, there was but a trodden path. This had been made by foot passengers. The road to Cherryfield and Harrington was not much better, though a pretence had been made to construct one.

To cross the river, one must make the passage by boat, or with a raft. The first bridge across the river was completed but a short time before the incorporation of the town, 1848.

The people were so well favored as to have one horse in their settlement. This was owned by Joseph Ray. The second person to have in his possession one of these scarce quadrupeds, was Col. Samuel Shaw.

The traveler must find accomodation in some private family, for no public house was here, although a little later Warren Leighton kept a lodging house for their entertainment. The first person to hang out a sign for a public tavern, was Samuel Means, whose house was on the site of present Atlantic Hotel.

Three merchants furnished the people with mercantile goods. William Ray's store was situated near Wyman, James Wallaces', at Wallaces' Creek, and Samuel Shaw's up the river near the Cherryfield line. William Ray is said to have kept his accounts on the side of the wall of his store. When charging one with a cheese, he made a would-be circle; or if it were a grindstone, he made the same character, but marked a square within. James Wallaces' old store is now the black-smith shop of Mr. Crosby Stevens, situated at Wallaces' Creek. At one time John Brown, then a boy, was sent up to Col. Shaw's to get some "log wood." Upon arriving at the store, he asked for the goods, but; when asked by the merchant for his paper bag to put it in, he said he had forgotten it. The excuse proved of no avail, the boy had to walk home and get the forgotten bag, before the merchant would give him his "log wood." Amos Dyer, David Corthell, Collins Ray, William Ray, William Dutton, Job. T. Wallace, James Mansfield, Moses Fickett, George Wright, James Brown and F. T. Sawyer were also early merchants.

Divine worship was held in a school-house or private dwelling houses. Sometimes the people attended services at Cherryfield. No church edifice was erected previous to those now in use. Henry Foster, an estimable citizen of the town informs the writer that he more than once, when a boy, walked to Cherryfield with his shoes under his arm; and, upon arriving, put them on and went into the church. Immediately, when they come out of the building, the shoes were removed, for the journey home must be made with bare feet. One pair of shoes was made to go a long time in those days.

The nearest Post-office was Cherryfield or Harrington. There could not have been much mail; for no newspaper came here, and postage was twenty-five cents on a letter. The first postmaster here was George Googins; who was succeeded by Warren Leighton, the second person to serve in that capacity.

The nearest lawyer and physician was living at Cherryfield. The first physician here was Dr. Googins; and the first lawyers, Messrs. Downs and Strout.

The school privileges were limited to one school house, situated near the site of Fletcher Campbell's present homestead. This was later moved to Wallaces' Creek.

The manufacturing plants consisted of a lathe mill at Wallaces' Creek, and a small ship yard near the same site. Many of the men worked in the yards at Cherryfield.

Thus we have a vague description of the present village and its surroundings when it was in its infancy. With these, what we would term adverse conditions, the early settlers were happy and contented. They made the most of their meagre privileges, is the secret of it all. Hardly an evening passed when a family did not have company, or make the same for their neighbor. Perhaps a little of this sociability would not harm us today.

Many are the stories told of the endurance of these early pioneers. It was a common occurrence for one of our townsmen to walk to Machias in one day. At one time, a number of men from this town worked in the ship-yards at Cherryfield; and, it was their custom to walk to the yards in the morning before beginning their days work, and to walk home again when it was completed. In loading their vessels with lumber for a voyage, they usually rafted it down the river during the night, and loaded it aboard the vessel during the day, working both day and night, until the vessel was loaded. These and many more were the feats of endurance of these pioneers of seemingly iron constitutions. It might be well for the reader to consider whether or not the present generation could repeat them. This brings up the question. Is the world growing wiser and weaker?

From 1835 to the present time, the town has had not a rapid, but a gradual growth in wealth and population. An idea of this may be given by scanning the following statistics : In 1850, two years after the town incorporation, the population was 1170, while Harrington the mother town had but 960. During the next ten years the population of Milbridge had increased to 1282, Harrington had then 1130. The estate valuation of Milbridge at that date was $206,359. Harrington, $247,133, but in the next ten years, Milbridge overtook and passed Harrington in valuation of estate, reaching the figures $299,747, while the latter was but $249,203, or $50,000 less than this town. In 1880 our town had a population of 1802, and an estate valuation of $304,779. The next census gives Milbridge's population 1963 and an estate valuation of $389,386. The last census, 1900, furnishes the following figure :

population, 1925; polls, 519; estate valuation $469,793. Thus the town of Milbridge has increased in population from 1170 in 1850, to 1925 in 1900; and in estate valuation from $206,359 in 1860, to $468,793 at our last census.

The future of Washington County never looked so prosperous as it does today. The attention of capitalists and manufacturers throughout the country being attracted here. Milbridge, situated on the Narragausus river and bordering on the sea, cannot fail, in the near future, to receive with the other towns of the County her share of this prosperity.

Incorporation.

Milbridge previous to its incorporation was a part of the town of Harrington. Before Harrington was made a town, 1791, the plantations of Cherryfield, Harrington and Milbridge held their meetings and kept their records as one organization.

In July 1848 the people in this section of the town of Harrington petitioned the Legislature for incorporation as a separate town. The distance to the town meetings then held in an old Baptist church at Mill River, and the increase in wealth and population on Narraguagus river, were reasons for this movement. The prime leader in this act was John L. Gardner, the builder of the bridge across the river, for as soon as it was completed he began to agitate the question of separation. The incorporation act was approved July 14, 1848. It is an interesting fact to know that the first child born in this town, was Frederick Dyer, now a citizen of Milbridge. Mr. Dyer was born the day following the town's incorporation, July 15.

We herewith submit the Incorporation Act.

STATE OF MAINE.

In the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight.

AN ACT to divide the town of Harrington, and to incorporate the town of Milbridge.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives assembled, as follows:—

Section 1. "All that part of the town of Harrington in the County of Washington, lying westerly of a line commencing on the north of said town in the centre of the channels of Mill River, thence following the channel of said river in a south-easterly direction to a point sixty rods below the end of Ray's Point; thence westerly following the deepest water between said Ray's Point and Cow Island and between Foster's Island and Pinkham's Island to a point thirty rods west of Foster's Island; thence southerly and parallel to shore of said Island to the Main ship channel; thence following the ship channel out between Trafton's Island and Pond Island to the Ocean, with all the islands in said town lying west of the line above described with the inhabitants thereon, is hereby set off from said town of Harrington, and incorporated into a separate town by the name of Milbridge, and vested with all the powers, privileges, and immunities, and subject to all the duties and liabilities of other incorporated towns agreeably to the constitution and laws of the state, and is classed in the same representative district as the inhabitants now are."

The following is a summary of the remaining six sections: Section II., says that the town of Milbridge shall pay their share of bills already contracted, shall meet their apportionment or expenses arising from law suit, accruing from any previous act, and shall take care of all paupers within its limits. Section III., states that this town shall pay their share of arrear taxes, and apportionment of state tax until the meeting of the next Legislature, when a tax will be levied on Milbridge. Section IV., gives the town of Milbridge its share of school money apportioned and not expended, and its portion of credit bills out. Section V., says that the town of Harrington shall report the last valuation of Milbridge to the next Legislature. Section VI., gives any Justice of Peace the power to issue a warrant for the first town meeting in Milbridge. Section VII., says that this Act of Incorporation shall go into effect when approved by the Governor.

A copy of the first Town Warrant is as follows :

"To William Ray, 2nd, one of the Inhabitants of the town of Milbridge. You are hereby requested, in the name of the state of Maine, to notify and warn the inhabitants of said town, qualified according to the Constitution, to assemble at the school-house, on the east side of the Narraguagus river near the house of Captain James Brown, on the twenty-first day of this month at two o'clock p. m., for the following purposes, viz :—for the election of Moderator, Clerk, three Selectmen, Assessors, Overseers of the poor, and Treasurer. Given under my hands this fourteenth day of August, 1848.”

JOHN T. WALLACE, Justice of Peace.

As requested by the above warrant, the people assembled in the school-house near the site of George Sawyer’s wharf on the east side of the river. The meeting was called to order by William Ray and the following business transacted.

Article I, chose Jonathan Upton, Moderator. Article II, elected Bradbury Collins, James Wallace, Jr. and R. Sanborn, Selectmen and Overseers of the poor for the ensuing year. Article III, chose James Wallace, Jr., Town Treasurer. Article IV, elected Moses Fickett, Town Clerk. Adjourned “Sine dea.”

The name of this town was in all probability suggested by John Gardner of Boston. Mr. Gardner completed the erection of the bridge across the river, which project had been stated by Alexander Foster. The cost of the bridge was estimated at $100,000. Here a tide mill was built by this Boston firm, and, from this fact, the town was given its name.

The spelling of Milbridge has been a subject of much discussion. Some say that two “ls” should be used because the name is a blending of the two words, “mill and bridge.” They further assert that the early incorporators meant it to be such. The one “l” supporters affirm that their spelling should prevail for if the towns namers did not mean it to be such, they would not have used the spelling with one “l” in the Act of Incorporation. They affirm that a mistake could not have been made, there, for the word was spelled too many times.

Since its incorporation, the annual town meetings have met in the following places as given in the records: 1848-49, in the school-house; 1850-58 in a Hall above the store of J. T. Wallace, Jr. & Co., except in 1856, when it met in a sail loft over the store of M. Fickett & Co.; 1858-1865, in the Union Meeting House Vestry; 1866-67, in Leighton's Hall; 1858, in Dyer's Hall; 1869-87, in Farnsworth's Hall, and from 1888 to the present time in the Opera House, except in 1891, when it was held in Farnsworth's Hall.

Military Matters.

The town of Milbridge is justly entitled to the high esteem of the state and nation for her loyal support of the Government in Military Matters. Whenever the call to arms has been sounded, her citizens have ever responded to its appeal. True and loyal has she ever stood for our national prestige.

WAR OF 1775.

In this struggle for independence, the population of the town of Milbridge was too few in numbers to take much of an active part. We are sure that some went to the front and did bravely and well their part. These, without doubt went to the rescue of Machias, when she was besieged and in danger of being captured by the enemy, for that town must surely have received able and loyal support from its neighboring towns, to enable it to defend itself successfully against the enemy. Some may have taken part in that memorable naval battle on June 12, 1775, when the British sloop, Marguerite, was captured, thus preventing the supply ships in the harbor from giving aid to the besieged British troops in Boston.

WAR OF 1812.

Throughout this war for national recognition, English war-vessels were continually preying all along the coast of Maine in pursuit of plunder. More than once did they sail across Narraguagus Bay. The settlers in this town, along the banks of the Narraguagus river, fearing an attack from one of these ships, left their homes and went to Cherryfield and Deblois, where they remained until their fears abated.

The story of the fight at Bois Bubert Island, when an English brig attempted to capture a coasting vessel, is well known to the reader, if he be a resident of Milbridge; yet the event is always worth hearing. The story goes that an English Man-of-War appeared off the Island, when, seeing a vessel loaded with lumber near at hand, they determined to capture it. Captain Allen of Harrington who was in charge of the coasting vessel saw the intentions of the enemy and made ready to meet them. He bade his men make ready the guns that were aboard, and place them in position for action. By his orders the crew were concealed behind the lumber, while he himself walked the deck in full view of the English. The enemy advanced in a small barge to seize their easily secured prize, but when summoning Captain Allen to surrender they received in return a broad-side from the guns. The result was the killing of four of their number, and the wounding of many more. Instead of being captured, Captain Allen made prisoners of the enemy. The English brig's crew, when they saw the fate of the barge, made a compromise with Mr. Allen and sailed away. The four Englishmen were buried on the Island. For his bravery, Captain Allen received a sword from the General Government.

WAR OF THE REBELLION.

In the struggle of 1861-65 the town of Milbridge took a most prominent part. Ever ready was she to raise money for expenditures, and to send her sons to the front. Too much praise cannot be given those true and loyal men who left this town and marched to the scene of conflict.

At the opening of this war, meetings were held in the village to secure volunteers. These enlisted at Cherryfield and neighboring towns, where there was a recruiting office. Many of those who enlisted from our town were promoted to higher rank than privates for their bravery.

The following are votes made by the town and recorded on the records:—

July 24, 1862.

- 1st. Voted to raise $75 for each volunteer.
- 2nd. Voted that the selectmen be instructed to hire $1000 on one years time or longer for the purpose of paying the $75 to the volunteers.
- 3d. Voted that the volunteers may have their money either here or in Bangor, as they may decide.

August 21, 1862.

- 2nd. Voted to raise $200 per man to be enlisted to fill this towns quotas as per order as per order of the General Government.
- 3rd. Voted that the town Treasurer be authorized to procure the money for the town to pay the men.
- 4th. Voted to amend Article 2nd so as to read, that the town pay to volunteers $200, and to drafted men $100.

5th. Voted that the Selectmen be authorized to draw orders for the money to be raised.

Feb. 23, 1863. Voted $350 for aid to destitute soldiers families.

Feb. 29, 1864. Voted $300 to pay aid to soldiers families.

Jan, 24, 1865. Voted to fill town's quota by volunteers.

Feb. 24. 1865. Voted $400 to aid soldiers families.

The following is a list of all Civil War Soldiers now residing in town: Frank Burke, John S. Chipman, Charles W. Colson, John W. Griffin, A. B. Jordan, James W. Kelley, Samuel Lamson, John E. Mitchell, M. W. Oxley, Thomas Page, Luther Strout, Daniel F. Strout, Leander Stevens, Alonzo Small, Darius D. Sprague, William Shaw, N. C. Wallace, William E. Wallace.

Church History.

Our early pioneers were a God fearing people. In all cases were they careful in providing for Divine Worship. They did not have costly buildings in which to assemble, no fine roads on which to travel, yet they always found a place in which to meet, and a way to get there at an allotted time.

At a very early date meetings were held in town. These were held at first, in private dwelling houses; later when a school house was constructed the people assembled there. No church edifice was constructed previous to the present one the Union and Methodist. Often the early settlers walked to Cherryfield and Harrington to attend the Sabbath meetings.

Many are the hardships that the early ministers of the Gospel endured. Their reward in worldly goods was but a pittance. The world's civilization owes much to these earnest Christian men.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The first Methodist preaching in this vicinity of this county was in about 1790, when Duncan McCobb, a preacher from the Provinces, came to this section and preached for a few Sabbaths- Jesse Lee, when on his trip through Maine, also administered to their wants on a few occasions. From that time until 1810 there was very little Methodist preaching in these parts.

In 1810, through the efforts of Rev. John Grindle, a local preacher from the Penobscot Circuit; a society was formed in this town on the Narraguagus river. It numbered ten or twelve souls. This circuit which comprised Milbridge and neighboring towns was supplied until 1820 by a Local Preacher from the Conference. At that date the Rev. Joshua Nye was sent to this circuit, he was the first settled pastor in this charge.

From 1820 to 1850 the circuit grew in numbers and several societies were formed within its limits. A church and parsonage was built at Steuben.

About 1852 a Union society in Milbridge built the church, which has ever since been their place of assembly. A Methodist parsonage was afterwards erected.

In 1883 when Rev. M. Walbridge was the Methodist pastor on this charge, the question of repairing and remodeling the church, was agitated. This was not carried out until 1885, then, under the leadership of Rev. H. E. Frohock the pastor, the project was started. The parsonage was sold in the meantime and with that and other funds subscribed the work was begun. Arrangements were made with the forty proprietors or pew owners of the church so that the property virtually came into the possession of the Methodist Society. After many hindrances were overcome, the work was finally finished, giving the society its present neat and commodious meeting house.

Today this society is in a flourishing condition. It has a well attended Sunday School, and many other church organizations, many successful and well beloved pastors have filled the pulpit of this church.

UNION CHURCH.

The Union Society of Milbridge was organized in 1853, when resolutions were drawn up, and plans were made to erect a Union Church. It was to be owned in shares, at a cost of $50 each, 60 shares being issued and sold to complete it. The church was built by contract by J. T. Wallace, and dedicated, Wednesday, March 7, 1854. The Dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Robinson, a Methodist pastor, the Dedicatory prayer was made by Rev. Mr. Cole, a Baptist clergyman, and the invocation and closing by Rev. Mr. Milliken, a Universalist preacher.

From its beginning this church has ever been open to preachers of all denominations. The first preachers to hold religious services in this church were of the Baptist denomination; later the Christian denomination began regular services and have remained until the present time. A Congregationalist pastor is to officiate in the near future.

Among the surnames of the pastors who have officiated over this church are the following: Parsons, Sanborn, Jones, Nugent, Walker, Eaton, Chase, Phillips, Hall, Hardway, Reed and Latimer.

At the present time this society is in a flourishing condition with a membership of about seventy-five. The society also has a flourishing Sunday School, and owns in addition to their church building, a neat and convenient vestry.

FREE CHURCH.

The East Side Chapel or Free Church of Milbridge is a society formed on the East side of the Narraguagus river. Previous to the erection of their present church building, this society met in an old school house.

About 1890, Rev. Elder Leathers, a Methodist clergyman, came to this society and hired among the people. His labors started a revival, with the result that the present House of Worship was erected. This was brought about by independent subscription from its members, and outside friends. The building was begun in July, 1891, and finished and dedicated during the autumn of that year. The Dedicatory sermon was preached by Elder Drew of Harrington, and on that occasion, the church was cleared of all indebtedness. The cost of this new church was estimated at $2000. The architect and builder of this building was Gilbert S. Kelley. Mr. Leathers remained with the church for a period of four or five years. Since his departure, this society has received the services of the pastors of both, the Methodist and Union churches across the river.

Educational Account.

The school history of the town of Milbridge covers a long and interesting period. As a whole we are proud of the record that is handed down. Her representatives, who have left the town and entered various phases of work speak well for their native town in this department.

The first schools in town were held in dwelling houses. Often the preacher taught these, for in those days, that was considered a part of his work.

Later a school house was built. This was situated near the present residence of Fletcher Campbell. This house was later moved to Wallace's Creek, where it was destroyed by fire.

The second building to be erected was situated about a fourth of a mile below August Wallace's store. This was constructed to take the place of the first one, for only one house was in use for school purposes. This second edifice was likewise destroyed by fire.

The third school building stood where Joseph Wallace's house now stands.

These three above mentioned were the earliest school-houses in town. Later others were erected on the East bank of the river, and in other parts of the town.

The school year consisted of two terms annually, which were in session a greater part of the time during warm weather. With only one school building in use, many were forced to walk a long distance to attend it.

Among the early teachers we have the names of Ricker, Shaw, Small, and Johnson. Many are the stories told of the severe chastisements that some of their pupils received. The lot of the teacher in those days could not have been very enticing. They were poorly paid, and had to "board round" to obtain their subsistence.

One of the oldest school-houses now standing in town is the building in the village, where meets the Grammar, Intermediate and Primary schools. This house was erected approximately forty years ago at a cost of $7000. It was built by the Village District. About this same time, or a little before, school was in session in the vestry of the Union Church, which seems to have been adapted to various public uses.

At the present time, the standing of the public schools of the lower grades, is of the best. The village schools are graded, and only competent teachers are secured for each district. The town is doing everything possible for the advancement of its schools.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Previous to 1888 the town of Milbridge had no Free High School. Through the efforts of some of the town's leading citizens, who felt their children were not having equal privileges with those of other towns of its size, several resolutions for a high grade institution were passed at the annual town meeting of that year. At that meeting the town voted $500 for the purpose of supporting and establishing a Free High School, and $2000 for the erection of a building suitable for its use. A committee of five was chosen to select the lot. They decided on that now occupied by the High School building. The price paid for its location was $250. The High School building was erected by Leverett Strout, at a cost of $1925, and was completed in the fall of 1888.

Today this institution, although in its infancy, gives promise of a very useful career. The school standard has had a gradual advancement until today its graduates are fitted for higher advanced institutions. Efficient instructors are employed and the school board spares no pains to make this institution one of the best in its class.

Industrial Affairs.

The town of Milbridge, owing to its situation, has always been interested in manufacturing and shipping industries.

For the first few years fishing formed the principal branch of industry, but, later, lumbering and ship building came to the front.

The first settlers in the Narraguagus valley obtained their daily necessities by fishing and hunting. The forests abounded with wild game, while the river was filled with several species of fish. Many are the stories told of their countless numbers. Even today the fishing industry is carried on quite extensively along the river.

The vast timber lands to the north of the town of Milbridge in the Narraguagus valley, naturally brought the lumber industry in town. Although very little of this was manufactured here, yet greater part of it was rafted down the river, and shipped to outside ports in Milbridge vessels. At a very early date saw mills were constructed in this town. Some of these were situated at Mill River, and others on the banks of the Narraguagus. Among the earliest mills here were the ones at Wallace's Creek and the "Tide" mill at the bridge. The mill at the creek was a lathe plant operated by Jonathan Upton, Eli Foster and others. This was in operation as late as 1840. The plant at the bridge was constructed by John L. Gardner of Boston. It was a saw mill and an unusually large one for its day. This mill was in operation at the time of the incorporation of the town, 1848. Since that date several other small plants have been in operation in various parts of the town.

The lumber that was manufactured was shipped to outside parties and this must be done in vessels, and vessels must be built. Thus the natural events brought about the ship-building industry in our town. The first ship-builder in this town was Major Joseph Wallace. He constructed several vessels at a very early date on the east bank of the river near his residence. Again in 1812 or thereabout the Foster Brothers, James and John, began the erection of a brig above the bridge which was never completed because of the embargo act and of the war of 1812. Ezekiel Dyer and Rufus Fickett built vessels at a very early date. Mr. Dyer's yard was at Wallace's Creek, while Mr. Fickett's was on the east side of the river a little below the bridge. The Strout's at Mill-River were early ship-builders and built several crafts in their yards on that same stream. In later years we have the names W. R. Sawyer, J. W. Sawyer, and his three sons, Messrs. Warren, Alonzo and E. E. Sawyer. This family may be termed the pioneer ship-builders on this river.

PRESENT INDUSTRIES.

JASPER WYMAN & SON is one of Milbridge's most prosperous industrial concerns. Mr. Wyman first erected a large sardine factory at the cove, known as Wyman, in 1893. Previous to that date he had carried on the same business in town, in partnership with his brother, the firm known as J. & E. A. Wyman Company. In 1903 and 1904, Mr. Wyman combined his sardine business with that of G. A. Sawyer. In 1904 Mr. Wyman's factory was destroyed by fire, but he is again rebuilding on the same grounds, and expects to have this factory in operation by the middle of May, 1905, This new plant will employ about 125 hands. Mr. Wyman also operates a clam factory which employs about 75 persons.

G. A. SAWYER, owner and operator of a large sardine plant, furnishes employment for many of his townsmen. The present factory is the outgrowth of the business started by his father, W. R. Sawyer, 23 years ago. The first sardine factory was built by W. R. Sawyer in 1882, at a cost of $20,000. Mr. Sawyer leased the factory to Wolfe and Reesing of New York, who carried on the business until 1886. At that date J. and E. A. Wyman secured the plant and operated it until 1893, when G. A. Sawyer, the present owner took possession of the factory. Two years later this factory was destroyed by fire, but in its place Mr. Sawyer erected the present building at an approximate cost of $10,000. One hundred and twenty-five hands are employed and the daily output is about 550 cases. Mr. Sawyer also owns one of the largest lobster pounds in this section.

SAWYER BROS. form Milbridge's present ship building concern. This business is the outgrowth of the business founded by their father, J. W. Sawyer, nearly a quarter of a century ago. For about ten years Mr. Sawyer operated his yards, and constructed many vessels, when his sons, Messrs. Warren, Alonzo, and E. E., became associated with him under the title of J. W. Sawyer & sons, which firm became known as Sawyer Bros. some thirteen years ago. Since that time or about five years ago, one of the brothers, Warren, left the firm and entered business for himself. His plant was situated just below his two brothers and comprised about two acres.

From this yard was launched, about three years since, a four master, being the largest sailing craft ever built on the river.

At the present time this plant is operated by the two brothers, Alonzo and E. E. Sawyer, and is equipped with all necessary machinery for the construction of modern craft.

J. C. and G. R. STROUT, saw mill operators, have a plant in the vicinity of the village. This mill was erected in the fall of 1902 at a cost of $1000. They manufactured long lumber and laths, some of which are sold to home patronage, but the greater part is shipped to Boston and New York. The mill is in operation only during the summer months, and employs about fifteen hands.

WARREN SAWYER, saw mill operator, has a mill situated at Wallace's Creek. This was erected in 1900. He manufactures long lumber and shingles. Approximately twelve hands are employed.

Facts of Interest.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

"Read good books first for you will not have a chance to read them all" is the sentiment of this institution wherever it may be found. The public library in Milbridge was organized April 21, 1896, when Edgar Wyman and six other residents of the town met in Charles Peabody's office and elected the following officers : J. A. Walling, President; Jasper Wyman, Vice President; Charles Peabody, Secretary; and Warren Sawyer, Treasurer. The books for the library were first secured by raising funds by subscriptions of five dollars each. The number has continually increased until today it has 546 choice volumes. The town furnished the building for the library, and also the librarian, who, at the present time is May Smith. Present officers are : J. A. Walling, Pres.; J. W. Sawyer, V. Pres.; Warren Sawyer, Treas.; Jasper Wyman, Secretary.

MILBRIDGE WATER COMPANY.

The Milbridge Water Company was first organized and its system laid in 1879, by Wm. R. Sawyer. At its beginning $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles of 3-inch pipe was laid at a cost of \$5000. The water was brought from a boiling spring on Dyer's Hill to all parts of the village by means of gravity power, alone, but, since then, a wind-mill and kerosene engine have been added to increase the power. The piping has also been enlarged to a 6-inch pipe, and the spring has a cemented wall that covers and entirely surrounds it. The Milbridge Water Company is now organized into a stock company, by act of the Legislature, March 14, 1895. The present officers are : Jasper Wyman, Pres.; Warren Sawyer, Treas.; Geo. A. Sawyer, Sec.; and Henry M. Leighton, Manager.

THE MILBRIDGE BAND.

At the present time the town of Milbridge has a musical organization of which she may be justly proud. The first musical organization, what is termed "a brass band" was organized in Milbridge in 1872, by Gilman Smith of Jonesport. This band had fourteen members, and was considered one of the best musical organizations in this part of the state. After five years of successful work its members disbanded.

The present organization was formed Jan. 1, 1904, and consists of 16 members. Though it is composed largely of inexperienced players, yet it already gives promise of a fine musical company. Its members meet every Saturday evening for rehearsal in their band hall. The following are its members: Guy Roberts, leader, solo cornet; Pearl Roberts, solo cornet; Fred Rich, first cornet; Samuel Ray, second cornet; Joseph Loring, solo clarinet; Russell Wallace, solo alto; Fred Leighton, first alto; Eugene Sawyer second alto; Edgar Dyer first tenor; Edmund Kelley, second tenor; Harvey Foster, baritone; Frank Gay, first S. trombone; James Wymar, E flat tuba; Carl Sawyer, B drum; James Strout, S drum.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The W. C. T. U. of Milbridge, was organized in September, 1902, in the Methodist meeting house. This society meets every Monday evening in the Union Church vestry. It has a present membership of thirty. This organization has adopted twelve departments, and each department is doing excellent work. Perhaps one of the most worthy departments is the work done for the children, through the Loyal Temperance Legion, in providing clothing for the needy ones. Then of the poor children of the town, who have been sent to the home in Augusta, through the efforts of Rebecca L. Field, an efficient worker in securing homes for homeless children. The society is also doing everything possible to train the children in the principle of total abstinence and purity, and to create a stronger sentiment for righteousness, for God, and home, and nation.

Masonic Lodge.

Pleiades Lodge, No. 173, meets every Monday evening in the Masonic Hall. It was organized May 7, 1874. Previous to its organization the members met with the Narraguagus Lodge, No. 88, of Cherryfield. As it was inconvenient for them to attend their mother lodge, they met, with her permission, and organized a Lodge of Instruction, which held its meetings in a hall over the old library building. But, later, in the year 1874, they requested to be set off by themselves; this the mother lodge refused, but it was finally brought before the Grand Lodge, May 7, 1874, and the request granted.

May 18, 1874, the lodge met and organized with sixteen members. The present lodge is in a flourishing condition.

They have lately added a new charter and furnished a new banquet hall. The present membership is 143. Present officers are : R. D. Gay, M.; C. W. Strout, S. W.; E. Dyer, J. W.; H. M. Leighton, Treas.; A. M. Sawyer, Sec.; A. P. Leighton, S. D.; H. H. Brazzell, J. D.; F. C. Reeding, S. S.; L. Hinkley, J. S.; A. C. Leighton, War.; A. G. Gay, Chap.; L. Johnson, Tyler.
